A Suicidal Policy.

A Suicidal Policy.

Menyantous New Dominion (Dem.)

Commencement is over, but there is still considerable commotion in and about the Athens. The authorities of the University seem to dread the newspapers; many people are opposed to the change just made by the Regents; some friends of the Institution threaten its removal to a more congenial clime, if Morgantown people "don't quit fighting it;" and other matters are conspiring to relard its progress and hamper its usefulness. This policy is suicidal and will result in certain destruction if persistently followed. We can't hope for much until all individual opinions and prejudices are laid aside, and all factions subjected to the general good.

This is "Butternilk" Mason, as on of the eminent rebel stateman, and agent for the syndicate which has bought up the West Virginia "certificates" of the old State debt. He has been boasting that he shall secure the payment of those certificates by West Virginia, and the Governor puts him in a position to help the scheme. We conversed with a number of the students of the University who passed through here last week, and they were unanimous in condemning the management of the school. Some thirty-two years since, when a bo of sixteen, resident in Western, New York was attacked with what was declared by hereditary scrofula. It appeared in the form of a glandular swelling upon the lef form of a glandular swelling upon the left side of the neck, which, desp ts all of the usual old-time remedies, continued to grow, becoming at, say eighteen, a seeming fixture of about the size of a hen's egg. The swelling was frequently very sore and painful, the more so that it was much of the time raw from the daily application of iodine. The general health became very much broken, and the prospects in life, for one just verging up in manhood were gloomy enough.

A promising physician in Cleveland, Ohio, advised a change of climate, with a life of hardehip and exposure, as presenting, in connection with youth, a possible chance of recovery. A removal to the South and West, and an active, out-door life for some years, attented the soundness of his judgment. The scrofulous swellings gradually disappeared; the system as gradually toned itself up; the broken and dispirited boy became a strong and hearty man of 183 pounds. There was a respite for fifteen years. During all of this time there was no sign of a return of the dread disease. As the future but too sadly proved, however, it was none the less surely, it slowly, working. In the spring of 1870, now thirteen years since, it again put in an appearance, and in an intensely accrawated form. an intensely aggravated form. First, a single ulcer appeared upon the left breast this was but the precursor of more than ten other, until the whole surface of the breast was but one mass of corruption. Some of these elects were not less than one and a half inches in diameter, the edges rough, ragged, and seemingly dead, the cavity open to the bone, and filled with a yei-lowish, waxy, and exceedingly offensive matter. Everything known to the medical fraternity was tried in vain. The disease be-came but the moreand more virulent. Grad-hally the bone itself became diseased, and then the sufferings began in earnest. Bone ulcers here and there began to take the place of those bitherto on the surface. The difference manifest in these was that The difference manifest in these was that the eruptions were of a watery nature, were copious and were attended with almost constant and severe pain. About the only relief experienced was found in burning the whole surface of the breast, night and

In the summer of 1880, after better, than the summer of 1880, after better, than the summer of 1880, after better, than the long years of this wetched existence, I was induced by a lady friend to Irya box of Curtura. I did so, much as I tried everything else that offered, without any faith. I was agreeably surprised to find, at ones, that it acted with a wonderful, soothing effect, in allaying the terrible burning and itching of the ulcers. I was induced, a little later, to try a box of Curtura. Resolvent, While I saw no immediate effect upon the particular disease, I was encouraged to continue its use by an unexpected and flattering result in quite another direction. I had been troubled with the dyspepsia. I lound here at once an agreeable sense of relief. I continued to use the Curtura. Remothers. After some months I began to see a change, and for the better. The old ulcers began to discharge far more freely, and relief was experienced in proportion. It kept on with the remedies, and kept on improving. First the one old ulcer, which had run for more than ten years, gradually healed. Then another, and still another. There were new and frequent eruptions. The broken-down system has gradually recuperated; has increased in weight from 123 to 156 pounds; the good work is still going on; the general health is becoming remarkably good; the man of 48 years of age, after more than 12 years of suffering, leeis himself a new man, and all through the CUTICURA REMEDIES.
